FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Westbound Highway 37 Re-Opened Today

Closed Due to Flooding Earlier This Week

NOVATO—Caltrans has reopened the westbound portion of Highway 37 in Marin County that was closed due to flooding. The highway was reopened at 2:20 this afternoon.

Caltrans closed the highway just after midnight on February 27 after the heavy rains flooded the nearby Novato Creek. The waters overtopped the levees. The eastbound section was reopened later that day.

The safety of the traveling public remains the top priority at Caltrans. If the Bay Area experiences another round of sustained heavy rain and flooding, the highway may have to be closed again.

Travel information is available on Caltrans QuickMap: <http://quickmap.dot.ca.gov/> and 511.org.
